Level : Undergraduate

Course Hours : 3.00- Hours

Department : Department of Political Mass Media

Instructor Information :

Title	Name	Office hours
Lecturer	REHAM GAMAL AHMED SALEM OMAR

Area Of Study :

Between the Arab revolutions and the stable classical Arab regimes, media has a critical role in political stability in this region of the world. This course explores the difference in role that media plays in the countries witnessing/witnessed revolutions and the other stable ones. The nexus of media-government-people is the main focus of the course. Particular emphasis is given to media transformation in post- Egyptian revolution and other countries that experience the revolution. Students conduct a comparative media research to examine the similarities and differences in media political agenda in the Arab region.

Course Goals:

- Investigate how the conditions in the Arab countries are affected by media.
- Explore media conditions in politically stable Arab countries and politically unstable countries.
- Analyze the media transformation process in post- revolution Arab countries.
- Explain current research and theory drawn from inter-disciplinary sources in the Arab world
- Investigate relationship between intellectual developments, emerging social, political and religious issues in the region.
