

Revolution, Cyber Culture and New Identity: Egyptian Political Changes as a Model

Sarra Moneir

Abstract

The paper discusses the difference between public and private spaces in politics since and during the Egyptian Revolution. The focus in the paper are the shifting roles of the protesters and how their shifting roles and awareness, also the importance of acquired knowledge, impact on how the older generation politicians struggle in facing this new form of reality in making politics on the Egyptian arena; hence a generation clash.

University of Amsterstam's International Conference 2012, January